Supervisor: Kurt Appel

Abstract (English)

This work explores the faith crisis of the Igbo African Christians in its historical, existential and cultural aspects. It explores the different manifestations of the faith crisis at different periods and its present manifestation in the form of the gospel of prosperity. The work seeks to bring the similarities and inner connectedness between the language of prayer in the Book of Job, the Jesus mysticism according to Johann Baptist Metz and the Ofo na Ogu Mysticism (iju Ogu) of the Igbo African culture and how the appropriation of this kind of mysticism in its Christian expression will be of great spiritual and physical benefits to the Igbo African Christians in their Christian lives and a great help in their faith crisis
